Duke University Press posts 2007 journals pricing early, announces availability of usage statistics, ALA presence

In response to heightened requests from the library community for more timely pricing information for budget planning purposes, Duke University Press announces the early availability of its 2007 journals' pricing. 2007 pricing for all individual journal titles, as well as the e-Duke Scholarly Collection, is now available for download at Duke University Press's Library Resource Center at <http://www.dukeupress.edu/library>.

Additionally, Duke University Press reports that COUNTER-compliant usage statistics—covering the first seven months of usage since their content migrated from Ingenta to Stanford University Libraries' HighWire Press—are now available to institutional subscribers. For directions on viewing your institution's usage statistics and for more information, please visit <http://www.dukeupress.edu/library/electronicaccess/usage.html>.

Library Relations Manager, Kimberly Steinle, will be present at the upcoming American Library Association Annual Conference in New Orleans, June 22–28. To schedule a meeting, please contact her prior to the conference at libraryrelations@dukeupress.edu or stop by Duke University Press booth #826 during the conference. Copies of the 2007 price sheet, site licenses, and information regarding the e-Duke Scholarly Collection will also be available for distribution at the Duke University Press booth during the conference.
